April 2 is World Autism Day and Junior Autism Ambassador for COSAC (NJ Center for Outreach and Services for the Autism Community), Val-Austin Sblendorio of Wayne once again is donating $300 worth of new books on the subject to the Wayne Public Library. It is his hope that the one in 94 families who may have received an autism diagnosis this year or the educators who roll up their sleeves to make a difference have resource materials to help them through their journey. A display will be up at the Wayne Public Library during the month of April.
